Objective

To remind young people, especially students, to think about responsible drinking.

To remind young people, especially students, to “take it slowly, one drink at a time”.

Description

The creative campaign was created by Community Management students from VERN University taking part in the university programme. The winning creation of the 2023-2024 academic year #MaloPomalo was promoted on media portals and social media in February 2024.

The mass media campaign comprised: Four native media articles, ten social media posts, and posts by two influencers.

- Native media articles: What’s the stupidest thing you’ve done while drunk; What is “binge drinking” and who performs the worst in Europe?; Quiz to measure the reader’s alcohol knowledge; How often young people drink – with surprising answers (video). The articles ended with a link to the consumer information website and a reference to the #MaloPomalo campaign.

- Ten Instagram posts: Standard drinks; Winning entry to the university competition; Being aware of your limits; About the giveaway; Making a mocktail; Resisting peer pressure; Different degrees of alcohol intoxication; Ideas on how to have fun without alcohol; Recognising your limits; Never drive under the influence of alcohol. All posts ended with “Consume responsibly, consume #MaloPomalo”.
 - The giveaway: The giveaway was run both to promote #MaloPomalo and to reward followers of the campaign’s Instagram profile. It was run from 17 to 24 February and entrants had to write a creative cocktail proposal in the comment section of the post and tag a person they would invite for the cocktail. Two 300ml cocktail glasses and a 6-piece stainless steel cocktail set that includes a shaker, a strainer, a dozer, and a wooden stand were awarded to the three winners.
- Two social media influencers created 6 social media posts in total (3 Instagram reels, 1 Instagram post, 1 Instagram story set and 1 podcast).
