They also distribute leaflets with the “Don’t drive drunk” message.

Breathalyser tests are handed out to people in bars so that they can measure their blood alcohol concentration (BAC) levels.

Social media information campaign which includes communication in social media via NGO’s, Police’s, cities’ profiles on Facebook (the No1 social network in Lithuania).

Results

Until the end of November 2017:

3,000 leaflets were printed and handed out.

42 bars and nightclubs were visited (combined total of 120 times) reaching 1,800-2,400 direct contacts.

Banners were shown on the on the 15min.lt, lrytas.lt, tv3.lt internet news portals.

Measurement & evaluation

Until the end of November 2017:

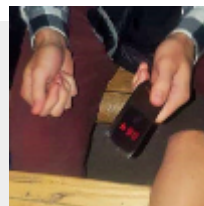

Face-to-face communication showed that people usually underestimated the effect of alcohol on their body. However, upon seeing the result of the breathalyser test, they agreed that to risk driving - even after a small drink - was too big.

The response from official institutions, municipalities and police was very positive.

To have more impact direct communication needs to be continued. Therefore, the campaign will continue, in some form, in the largest cities.
